

'Kronos at 40' wrapped up with a Pixies tribute and collaborations with Jherek Bischoff and Dan Deacon (pics)

July 29, 2013

photos by Amanda Hatfield

The rain kept crowds away, but the band played on for Sunday's finale (7/28) of the five-day "Kronos at 40" celebration as part of the Lincoln Center Out of Doors festival. It was the final night and undoubtedly the most indie rock friendly event of Kronos Quartet's run, as it featured a tribute to Pixies' Surfer Rosa (which turned 25 this year) with help from the Asphalt Orchestra; plus collaborations with Dan Deacon, Jherek Bischoff, "atheist gospel trombone choir" The Heavens, and more. In addition to Surfer Rosa, they performed works by Bryce Dessner, Amon Tobin and Clint Mansell, and encored with one of their first forays into the pop world -- their tribute to Jimi Hendrix.

http://www.brooklynvegan.com/archives/2013/07/kronos\_at\_40\_wr.html